

Carbon Mitigation Initiative (CMI) Launches Redesigned Website

The Carbon Mitigation Initiative (CMI) at the Princeton Environmental Institute (PEI) has just launched its new website: <http://cmi.princeton.edu/>. The site now provides added functionality and content. Exciting features created for the new site include a searchable index of over 700 articles and annual reports published by CMI faculty and staff since the initiative's inception in 2000. Also updated and expanded are the comprehensive lists of CMI members and their research interests, sponsors and research partners, and information on CMI's research, education, outreach and affiliated programs. Special new sections include current news covering research conducted by the CMI community, annual meeting information, materials related to the "Stabilization Wedges" and "One Billion High Emitters" papers, a list of resources related to carbon mitigation and more.
