

Emmanuel H. Kreike

Associate Professor of History
Ph.D., Yale University, 1996

Research Interests

Kreike specializes in the history of southern Africa in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, with a focus on environmental history. He is currently completing a second book-length manuscript with the title "Paradigms and Paradoxes of Environmental Change: Deforestation and Reforestation in Namibia." In the Spring and Summer of 2005 he was on leave in Angola to complete the field research for a book-length study with the working title "Small Wars, Huge Impacts: The Apartheid Wars and the Southern African Environment," based on extensive field research in Angola, Mozambique, Namibia, and South Africa.

Areas of Expertise

Environmental history

Contact Information

138 Dickinson Hall

Tel 609-258-4155

Fax 609-258-5326

kreike@princeton.edu

Website: http://www.princeton.edu/history/people/display_person.xml?netid=kreike