

VTCalendar

... is a web-based event calendar that allows for decentralized event management with optional centralized approval. It supports calendar hosting for individual organizations and the forwarding of events from these calendars to the main event calendar. It was initially developed in an effort to reduce the number of event calendars at Virginia Tech. The software can optionally integrate with LDAP and has many features that facilitate the integration with other services like RSS or iCalendar export. VTCalendar is based on PHP. By using the PEAR DB abstraction layer it is compatible with MySQL, Oracle and many other databases. The open-source software is available for free.

The screenshot displays the VTCalendar web application interface. It features a navigation bar with 'Event Calendar', 'Day', 'Week', and 'Month' views. The main content area shows a calendar for February 13-19, 2005, with various events listed for each day. A sidebar on the left provides additional navigation and filtering options. The interface is designed for both event management and viewing.
